CHANCELLOR’S REPORT
Chancellor Page thanked everyone for their openness, support and assistance during his first two months in office. Chancellor Page introduced and welcomed Ms. Kate Foster, President-elect for UMF. He also thanked Vice Chancellor Wyke, her staff, the Presidents and their staff for delivering a balanced budget for the next fiscal year. However, it’s not a sustainable model and the UMS has to change the way these matters are approached and minimize the unpredictability and move to greater strategic planning and strategic investments to those ad hoc reactions to economic circumstances. Our constituencies are ready for change and there is a wide variety of opinion which points to some lack of clarity of direction, but ultimately improved processes and alignments are needed among all of the constituencies. Chancellor Page stated he agrees that better communications are needed.

Chancellor Page commented that the Board of Trustees Actions and Goals outlined in January 2012 is the foundation for the strategic plan moving forward. The three high priority projects which include the systematic review of the System operations, the performance based funding models, and interoperability which is the ability of the student to move with less friction between campuses and between the UMS and the Maine Community College System. He stated that he looks forward to getting those projects underway. These priorities have been imbedded in an overall structure for change management and leadership from the Board of Trustees to the campuses. Many of the campus details are still being developed starting with some pilot projects. Chancellor Page stated that he will continue his outreach by meeting with people across the state to become more familiar with entire community and develop ways for more engagement.

Chancellor Page stated that it will be important to communicate to all constituencies about these plans going forward and he will always welcome input.

University of Maine Information Security Breach.
Ms. Rebecca Wyke, Vice Chancellor for Finance and Administration and Treasure, explained the recent information security breach with a computer program that was developed in 1999 by the staff at the Computer Connection at UMaine. At the time, it was a state-of-the-art application which UMaine and several other universities adopted, most particularly the University of Arkansas, as well as two other university systems were active at the time of the breach. UMS had developed a new system and had transitioned to it at UMaine and had encouraged the other universities do likewise. However, UMaine continued to host the server which made it somewhat vulnerable. The individuals affected in Maine by the breach are relatively small. All of the proper notification has been performed and extensive investigations are continuing. Ms. Wyke thanked the staff at UMaine and Mr. John Forker, Chief Information Security Office, and his staff for their efforts.

DISCUSSION ITEMS

Recommendations for the Administrative Services Review and Performance Based Funding Model Projects. Chancellor Page stated that three high priority projects have been endorsed by the Board of Trustees with very aggressive timelines and deliverables in support of the Board’s Actions and Goals developed in January 2012. The first two projects will be managed by a common group. The first project is the systematic review of the System operations and its charge is to look at all administrative services on all of the campuses and the System Office comprehensive and functionally divided in order to implement ways to gain efficiencies and streamline throughout the University System. Financial targets have been set for this project on a one, two and three year basis of $8 million cumulatively each year in annualized savings. The structure in which this project and all projects are being vetted will be discussed in more detail at a later date. The Board of Trustees sets the priorities and engages with the committees that will be working on the projects and will set the audits. The President’s Council will discuss the charges, pull out details and consults with the Chancellor and the Steering Committee to drive each of these projects. The Steering Committee for the administrative review and the performance based funding model is the Chancellor, Vice Chancellor Wyke, President Paul Ferguson, President Cynthia Huggins, and Trustee Karl Turner. This Committee will be engaging with constituencies throughout the campuses to design and implement. The charge for the performance based funding model is develop models for recommendation to the Board on allocating a set of resources to be used to be distributed according to the achievement of performance based goals. The Steering Committee will develop the matrix to test and model the options in a variety of ways for policy and financial soundness and respect to the challenges the campuses are individually facing and lead the implementation team with implementations scheduled to begin in academic year 2013-2014. The third project is the credit transfer project. The Steering Committee for this project is President Wilson Hess, Trustee Gregory Johnson, UMaine Provost Susan Hunter and USM Associate Provost Dahlia Lynn. This project is not only a Board of Trustees initiative but also a directive from the Governor’s Office with the hope to allow students to transfer between campuses and systems without unduly penalizing the students financially and time to completion of their degrees or certifications. The Governor has made clear his support of the UMS budget, even at its current level, is dependent upon successful completion of this project.

The administrative review project has been divided into a number of review teams. These projects are very complex. In order to test our processes and systems and building teams, these will be implemented in staged efforts. The Information Technology Department is being used as a pilot.

Information Technology Across the UMS

Mr. Richard Thompson, Chief Information Officer, provided a presentation on evaluating and improving the effectiveness, efficiency and affordability of Information Technology across the UMS.

A team of Information Technology professionals, led by the UMS Chief Information Officer, will perform a deep analysis of Information Technology across all of UMS. Information Technology Directors will lead evaluation of Information Technology components and services, to obtain data, costs and options, and to develop recommendations to improve efficiency and service while achieving cost savings. Work will engage students, faculty, chief academic officers, chief financial officers, and others at the campus and System-wide Services. Specific recommendations will be presented in monthly interim progress reports and once approved, implementation will begin. Cost savings and avoidance will be estimated in the design process. A final design report with estimated cost savings, a detailed implementation plan and schedule will be delivered by December 31, 2012 to the Board of Trustees, the Steering Committee, the Chancellor and the Presidents. Progress, effectiveness and actual savings will be measured and reported regularly.

The Information Technology review will include the following six components:

1. Analyzing management structure and senior Information Technology staff model;
2. Evaluating and acting upon redundant services;
3. Evaluating systems, applications and assigned resources;
4. Developing an initiative management process for research and development of new products and services;
5. Analyzing the operating budget; and
6. Establishing and implementing policies and standards for architecture, hardware and software.
The high level outcomes would allow flexibility and innovation at the campus level but managed to common standards which will be measured by customer satisfaction. A transparent Information Technology research and development process for new tools and applications including a modern web site with initiatives identified and results published. Reducing redundancy to only where necessary and cost savings and efficiencies identified and metrics developed based on standard services compared to other entities. Mr. Thompson reviewed the analysis and design timeline which begins in May 2012 and continues until December 2012.

Chancellor Page commented that during the reviews external consultants maybe engaged to validate and verify the results; however, to the maximum degree possible these reviews will be completed with internal resources. As the UMS realize these efficiencies and savings that will be generated, it is critical in a time when the UMS is resource constrained that the resources be invested in high priorities which the Board of Trustee will establish. This is an exercise in how the UMS can invest in the future of the universities.

Upon Trustee Hood request, the Board of Trustees endorsed of the strategic, transformational directions that the Chancellor has identified as the three priorities which include the systematic review of the System operations, the performance based funding models, and interoperability or transferability of credits.
